Good Taste in Furniture For the Dining Room

Furniture that is not "fussed up" to sell, but that will be found exactly as it appears, namely, true to the heart in wood, workmanship and design—the trinity that makes good furniture. As families of the future sit around the board, they will bear the same love for these dining room examples as is bestowed on heirlooms like old silver, tapestries or family jewels. It is of dining room pieces of this nature that you and we are most concerned about in this announcement.

Our furniture is not sold on the argument of price, but on the self-evident proofs we present that quality meets price and therefore gives you full value received. We shall consider it a favor to be allowed to show you these new and "different" designs in dining room furniture.

Hanover, N. H., dispatches to Sunday's Boston papers comment favorably on a series of playlets given at Webster hall at Dartmouth college Saturday evening under the auspices of the Dartmouth Dramatic club. One of the members of the cast was Alexander M. Brown of Ayers street, this city, who entered Dartmouth last fall, following his graduation from Spaulding high school in June. Mr. Brown took one of the moving roles in "Copy," a farcelet by Kendall Banning that has been played with excellent success on the vaudeville time. One newspaper mentions "Copy" as the most original of the three playlets presented by the students. The other two were Maeterlinck's "The Intruder," and "Prom Is Coming."

Two New York Authorities.

So it appears Dr. Finley, commissioner of education of New York, did not endorse the Carnegie recommendation as to higher education in Vermont. His letter to President Thomas, which we published yesterday, states that he "believes thoroughly" in the New York plan of state scholarships, which cost the Empire state $300,000 a year.

By the way, President Nicholas Murray Butler, director of the Carnegie Foundation and member of the Vermont educational commission, was chairman of a committee appointed by the New York state colleges and universities to further the passage of this scholarship bill through the New York legislature.

If we remember rightly, Dr. Butler exhibited considerable activity in assisting the late Commissioner Draper in getting the measure passed more than either the president of Fordham university, who were his associates in the committee promoting the passage of the measure.

In consistency, therefore, Dr. Butler can hardly advise his associates on the Vermont commission to adopt the Carnegie recommendation that Vermont state scholarships be discontinued. Or perhaps he thinks Vermont students are less worth educating!—Burlington Free Press.

Ethel Barrymore and Her Children.

In the "About People" department of the March Woman's Home Companion appears a photograph of Ethel Barrymore and her three children. As an accomplished and popular actress Ethel Barrymore has played many parts, but in none is she more charming than in her domestic role of Mrs. Russell Griswold Colt, the mother of three children. Following is an extract from the note that accompanies the picture:

"After having thrown herself into the character of the superbly selfish artist in 'Tante,' Ethel Barrymore must find it wonderfully restful to go home to be Mrs. Russell Griswold Colt, playing the domestic role of Mrs. Russell Griswold and interesting audience of three little Colts—Samuel, Pomeroy, named for his paternal grandfather, Ethel Barrymore, and the baby, John Drew. These three children have three generations of distinguished stage ancestry behind them. Mr. and Mrs. John Drew of Philadelphia, well-known to the playgoers of an earlier day, were their great-grandparents. Their maternal grandparents were Maurice Barrymore and Georgiana Drew Barrymore; John Drew is their great-uncle, and in addition to calling Ethel Barrymore mother they number John and Lionel Barrymore among their uncles."
